

MOSCOW TRIAL OF 21 SPELLS DOOM FOR COMMUNISM

Russia's Red Terror Has Brought Its Own Reward, Says Writer

APPROACHES CLIMAX

Is Witness of Formal Death Sentence by Russian Communists

(Note: Why the Moscow trial of 21 means more than their death, why it means the doom of international communism itself, is told in the following illuminating dispatch from H. R. Knickerbocker. The famous observer of world affairs also sheds light on how the "terror" works in forcing the defendants' amazing confessions.)

PARIS, Mar. 5.—(INS)—The Communist International is condemned to death.

Russia's Red terror has brought its own reward, and today as Stalin's fourth mass trial of his old comrades approaches its climax, the world is witness to the most astonishing spectacle of all the 20 years of that revolution which once exalted the hopes of rebels against the existing order throughout the world.

It is witness not merely of the judicial extermination of the last of the Old Guard who made the Bolshevik Revolution, but it is witness of a formal death sentence by Russian Communists upon International Communism itself.

While the trial proceeds and the defendants confess with a fervor which puzzles professional psychiatrists in every country, thousands of foreign Communists in the Soviet Union are attempting to flee the country.

Even those who ran from their native lands which turned Fascist are today applying to their embassies in Moscow for help to return.

Even German Communists are trying to get back to the merciful confines of Adolf Hitler's concentration camps. Italians are seeking to return to Mussolini's kindly ministrations.

Two hundred Austrian Schutzbundlers, Socialists who escaped after their abortive uprising in 1934 and thought to find refuge in the "Fatherland of the Revolution," now are pleading with the Austrian legation to help them and, according to an Austrian who has just returned from Moscow, their legation actually is giving them all the aid possible.

Russia today is the most dangerous country in the world for the Communist, and that is the best explanation for this trial, which nevertheless has aspects which baffle logic.

Since Stalin seized power in 1925 after the death of Lenin he has done two things:

First, he determined to abandon the original Communist program for world revolution and concentrate all Russia's energy on building a Socialist Soviet Union.

Second, he gradually has eliminated every human being who opposed this program.

This means that of the nine members of the all-powerful Politburo headed by Lenin two, Zinoviev and

An attractive new bulletin board has been erected on the property of Grace Episcopal Church. The framed board, which measures approximately three by four feet, is mounted on a substantial metal frame-work. The board, which provides for a large number of lines of letters, is indirectly lighted. It has been erected to the side of the front entrance of the edifice. The board was built by Oscar Schoenfeld, he being aided in the construction by Albert Fischer, Sr., Philadelphia; Franz Schoenfeld, South Langhorne; Lewis Brunner, and Walter Hanns. Thank offerings will care for the financial portion of the improvement.

Reliance Company Joins Search For Thieves

NEWTOWN, Mar. 5.—The Newtown Reliance Company has joined the search for the band of thieves who made a haul of goods early Tuesday from the Savidge Brothers Clothing Store. The organization has offered a reward of $100 for information leading to the capture of the thieves. Savidge Brothers have matched the reward with another $100 to be paid by the Consolidated Vigilance Society of New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Stacy B. Brown, Newtown undertaker, J. Stanley Lee and George E. Griscom, who comprise the "detective corps" of the Newtown Reliance Company, have joined the borough police and the Pennsylvania Motor Police in the investigation.

They have agreed the $1,000 haul was perpetrated by a band of amateur thieves.

JAPANESE TRADITIONS MODERNIZED FOR WAR

Elaborate Ceremonial Nuptials and Custom of Gift-Giving Sharply Curtailed

GAYETY STIFLED

(Note: Japan's war in China has struck at more than the country's pocketbooks and the life-blood of her young men. The struggle has wiped away centuries of tradition, has stifled much gayety, and even altered marriage customs. How the war is affecting the every-day life of Japan is told in the series of three dispatches of which this is the first.)

By James R. Young
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, Mar. 5.—(INS)—Bright and cheery days for Japan have been swept away by the economic and social tides of her war with China.

Officialdom in its regimentation of Japan's teeming millions has frowned on elaborate ceremonial nuptials and their gorgeous costumes, banquets, cosmetics and fashionable clothes.

Restaurants no longer enjoy the boom-day trade of the past decade. Only a few select and high class places manage to survive the dearth of nightly functions so dear to Japanese people who, Occidentals observe, dine out more than in. Middle and lower class eating houses are suffering.

The vicious circle of gift-giving has passed. Previously no opportunity arose to banish the Japanese system of returning gifts in exchange for gifts. A married couple presented gifts to friends for sending gifts. A prominent citizen died and friends sent incense money or huge paper floral decorations of doves and lilies. The family in return sent a gift of proportionate value. The war has halted these unique Oriental fancies. Now the people are finding the let-down is economical. It is one blessing, they say, of wartime conditions.

School girls this term have no examinations. They expected a holiday. But no, the military stepped in. Now for the two weeks between semesters the young ladies are making epaulets. One school of 500 girls made 30,000 epaulets. The same group remained after school hours and with batteries of sewing machines made thousands of white kimonos with Red Cross insignia for wounded soldiers who don the garment as an official recognition of injuries.

Two nation-wide patriotic women's associations continue contributing truck-loads of comfort bags to Japan's mighty military machine now battling Chinese guerilla warfare and China's bitter cold weather. School girls by the tens of thousands, during recess and after school instead of playing, knit sweaters and comfort kits.

The whole nation—men and women, children and adults—is rallying to the constant government din to keep up their interest. But many predict that soon, perhaps in another half year, that din will become too tiring, and interest will lag.

Boys and girls in middle and primary schools, by official ministerial decree, must not wear wool uniforms. They are ordered to wear standard school uniforms containing 20 per cent or more of cotton fibre. Only soldiers, sailors, postmen, firemen, tram conductors and motormen are permitted wool outfits.

Staple fibre costumes absorb moisture quickly and depreciate much more rapidly than wool uniforms. That means increased danger of sickness. Nonetheless the order is official and the people must abide by the firm instruction of a government determined to win the China conflict. More than half Japan's days in a year bring rain. The intense humidity and dampness will weaken the value of staple fibre school uniforms.

Rich or poor, a Japanese wedding function often is beyond economic

OPPOSE ABOLISHMENT OF HARBOR MASTER OFFICE

Anchor Yacht Club Members Say Protection to Navigation Is Absolutely Necessary

URGE ITS RETENTION

The Anchor Yacht Club opposes the abolishment of the office of Harbor Master here, which was announced February 14th, and at a meeting of the club held last night, resolutions were adopted protesting against such a move. "It is a step 30 years backward," was the consensus of the meeting.

Opinions of the membership expressed at the meeting were to the effect that a harbor master is needed here now more than ever. Activity on the Delaware river between Torresdale and Morrisville is greater now than it ever has been, and in addition ocean-going boats now pass through the Delaware river as far as Trenton.

There has been a harbor master stationed at Bristol since 1912 and the office was held by the late Samuel Milnor until 1928. Edward S. Dougherty succeeded Milnor and was the incumbent until the office was abolished last month. Previous to the creating of the office of harbor master here the late Charles E. Scott was the Port Warden.

The resolutions adopted by the Anchor Yacht Club, last night, will be forwarded to the Department of Forests and Waters at Harrisburg and also to the Navigation Commission for the Delaware River. They read as follows: Mr. J. F. Bogardus, Secretary, Department of Forests and Waters, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Dear Mr. Bogardus:

At a regular meeting of the Anchor Yacht Club, Bristol, Pennsylvania, held this fourth day of March, A. D. 1938, the following preamble and resolution were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the interest of navigation on the waters of the Delaware River extending from the Philadelphia County Line at Torresdale, Pa., to the limit of tide water at Trenton, New Jersey, it was found absolutely necessary

TO DISCUSS TRAFFIC PROBLEMS AT MEETING

Open Meeting Called by Borough Officials for Monday Evening

IN MUNICIPAL BLDG.

An open meeting at which the traffic problem in Bristol is to be discussed has been called for Monday evening. It is to be held in the Municipal Building beginning at eight o'clock. Those interested are invited to attend.

The meeting is being sponsored by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson, borough officials, the police committee, and street and highway committee of Borough Council.

Members of the Mill Street Business Men's Association have been invited to attend.

The handling of traffic in the Mill street area has become exceedingly difficult and has reached the point where regulations must be adopted and strictly enforced.

Numerous narrow escapes from accidents occur each day and the menace of a fire hazard exists daily.

A suggested plan, after a survey by Keystone Automobile traffic engineers and borough council committees, is to establish one-way traffic on Mill street in the direction of the Delaware river and along Radcliffe street to the intersection of Market street. Then one-way traffic on Market street to the Highway. It has been suggested that parking—one way—on both sides of the streets named be permitted.

It is the object of the borough officials to have this plan discussed in open meeting Monday evening and to receive suggestions from those attending, which might tend to improve the suggestions made. Double parking would be banned and perhaps all parking limited as to time.

Drive Slowly If You See Red Spots Blinking

HARRISBURG, Mar. 5.—(INS)—Mr. Motorist: If you see red spots blinking in the distance ahead of you while driving along at night, slow down.

The State Highway Department is equipping its employees who work along the highways at night with shoulder straps bearing red reflectors. The move was inaugurated to guard the workers against injury by automobiles.

The Department plans to equip 750 men with the Sam Browne belts to determine the practicability of the innovation. Later, it is planned to purchase additional reflectors.

"These belts, of the Sam Browne type, have two three-inch reflectors which can be adjusted into any position to reflect the lights of oncoming traffic," Chief Engineer Samuel W. Marshall, of the Department said. "In addition the shoulder straps have two 1½ inch reflectors."

"If proven satisfactory, the Department plans to ultimately distribute approximately 5,000 of these belts to further protect the safety of all men engaged in cinder operations and other emergency work at night."

Marshall said experiments with white coats and black-checked jackets proved unsatisfactory because they blended with the snow and made the men still harder to see at night. He said, however, the usual precautions of posting watchmen and lanterns will be taken when the highway workers are called out at night.

FIND LIFELESS BODY OF LINDEN STREET RESIDENT

Believe Thomas Archer, 78, Had Been Dead for Nearly Four Days

NEPHEW'S DISCOVERY

Had Apparently Been Playing Solitaire; Heart Ailment

Believed to have been fatally stricken nearly four days earlier, the lifeless body of Thomas Archer, 78, was found in a chair at his home, early yesterday afternoon.

With a deck of cards in front of him, with which he had apparently been playing a game of solitaire, and with his eye-glasses on the table beside him, Mr. Archer apparently died very suddenly. He was seated in a chair at the dining-room table, and his body had slumped to the side against a dresser.

The discovery was made by Neal McGlinchey, 236 Otter street, husband of Mr. Archer's niece. It had been the custom of Mr. Archer to attend Mass each morning in St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church, and enroute to his home to stop in the McGlinchey store. Not having seen the aged man for a few days, Mr. McGlinchey became alarmed, and early yesterday afternoon went to his uncle's home to investigate. Finding the doors locked, and receiving no response, Mr. McGlinchey forced an entrance, and made the gruesome discovery.

Mr. Archer, who leaves one brother, James V. Archer, Mill street, resided alone. He was retired, having during his earlier years operated a coal barge on the Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The boat, owned by Mr. Archer and a brother, was operated by the two as far as Mauch Chunk for many years.

Mr. Archer was last seen alive early Monday evening, and it is believed he died shortly after that. He was the son of the late Matthew Archer. He is reported to have been in good health, and had not complained of feeling ill. Mr. Archer was a life-long resident of Bristol borough.

Dr. James P. Lawler, deputy coroner of Bucks County, was summoned. The funeral will be held on Monday.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral at nine a. m., from Molden's funeral home, 542 Bath street. Solemn Mass of Requiem will be said at 10 o'clock in St. Mark's Church. Interment will be made in St. Mark's Churchyard. Friends may call Sunday evening.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

The plan of the Automobile Manufacturers Association to promote disposal of used car stocks is doubly encouraging. The proposed joint campaign to this end is quite apt to succeed in hastening the upturn in new car sales. But equally hopeful, it seems to us, is simply this renewed demonstration of the industry's capacity to meet and solve its own problems.

Self-help in too many other industries means getting together to defend and perpetuate uneconomic prices. The automobile industry is conspicuous among big industries for preserving the benefits of true competitive enterprise. Yet it is no less conspicuous for its simultaneous capacity for co-operative enterprise of the sort now proposed.

Present stocks of used cars must be moved before dealers can handle a normal volume of new cars. Already these used car stocks are beginning to move under the stimulus of bargain prices. A Ward's Automotive Reports made known last week. The industry, however, believes it can help move them faster and speed the return of normal conditions if it brings the facts forcefully to public attention.

Over one-third of automobiles now in use are seven years old or older. At the same time used car prices stand at record low levels, the average quality at a record high. An opportunity evidently is presented for modernizing the country's automotive equipment, an opportunity that will pay dividends to purchasers in economy and safety and to all concerned in stimulated business activity.

That is the picture the industry will lay before the public in an example of enterprise that, by all standards, deserves to succeed.

AVERAGE IS WORST

It is not the drunken driver, not the myopic driver, not the speed monkey, not the reckless plunger who is responsible for the majority of automobile accidents. The one most to blame is the average driver. This analysis and accusation is brought against the majority of motorists at the annual convention of the Association of Highway Officials of the North Atlantic States.

The federal and state authorities assembled to study ways and means for waging war on the traffic killer were told that the average driver causes 75 per cent of the nation's highway mishaps; that highway safety is a slow job because it deals primarily with human conduct, which is slow to change, and that the war against death in the streets is of necessity a slow and tedious and at times a discouraging one, a campaign in which the prime requisite is education, especially of the great majority of motorists who pat themselves on the back as being, in their own opinion, "good drivers."

Most accidents, the highway officials were told by Dr. Ralph L. Lee, are caused by our doing things we already know are wrong. One answer, he believes, is plenty of uniformed police in plain sight, both on foot and on wheels, and, most important of all, unifiable traffic courts. He expresses surprise at the great number of "good drivers" who fail in emergencies because they do not know how to take curves or avoid skidding or handle a blowout.

Among the things that cover a multitude of sins are charity and a nice fat bank account.

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

THE GRAND

It's "Checkers" Jane Withers now! The girl who has just been voted one of the six most popular stars of today wears the proudest racing silks on the track in "Checkers," her latest Twentieth Century-Fox picture, opening Sunday at the Grand Theatre. Jane's at her apologetic best, and what a thoroughbred she is, even when Lady Luck forgets to act like a lady.

Stuart Edwin and Una Merkel are featured in romantic roles in the film, and Marvin Stephens, the bad boy of "Borrowing Trouble," plays Jane's first screen "crush."

As the slickest horse-trader who ever got stung, Stuart has been courting Una for seven years. She disapproves of Stu's motto: "Love me, love my horse," for Una is a girl who refuses to fill her hope chest with horse blankets.

The horse that stands in the way of Stu's romance in the recent days of his sit-down courtship is "Blue Skies," a racing filly whose flashing hoofs at the end of the film give the girl a new light on the Erwin motto.

THE BRISTOL

Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray are joined by John Barrymore in the co-starring leads of Paramount's comedy-drama, "True Confession," which opens tomorrow at the Bristol Theatre.

In the film, Miss Lombard and MacMurray play the parts of a struggling young lawyer and his wife, constantly at swords' ends because of the conflict between Miss Lombard's inborn habit of lying and MacMurray's love for truth.

Implicated by circumstantial evidence, Miss Lombard finds herself accused of a murder, of which she is entirely innocent. MacMurray does not believe her story, and forces her to "confess" that she killed in self-defense. On this plea, he gets Miss Lombard an acquittal.

Barrymore steps into the scene, in the role of an eccentric delirious whose brother-in-law actually committed the murder, and who tries to blackmail Miss Lombard by threatening to tell MacMurray that she lied to him in her "confession," unless she buys him off.

The film winds up with the most hilarious combination of comedy elements to reach the screen in a long, long while, with Miss Lombard finally realizing that under no conditions is she ever to lie to her husband again. "True Confession" was directed by Wesley Ruggles.

JENKINTOWN RALLIES TO NOSE OUT MORRISVILLE

By Louis Tomlinson

ARDMORE, Mar. 5.—It took a spirited last period rally for coach Bill Dougherty's Jenkintown Red Devils to overcome a three-point Morrisville lead mid-way in the chapter to nose out the Bulldogs by a single tally in their dog fight here last night, 15-14.

The tilt, which was shifted from Abington to the Lower Merion gym here at the last minute because of the seating capacity, was a furious struggle that became hotter as the game progressed and only the quick action on the part of the officials working the contest averted possible fistfight action. As a result of the victory, the winners moved into the next round of play in the State Tournament and they will encounter either North Coventry or Bridgeport, depending upon who won the tilt between those two quadrants last night. The triumph also marked the first in three entries into the State post-season carnival for a Dougherty-coached outfit and by coincidence he won by the same margin as were his defeats handed out—by a single counter.

Neither team was in tip-top form as both aggregations played ragged ball at times throughout the fray due partly to the pressure both clubs were under and other various reasons. But for the most part the tilt was a thriller for the fans except for the fact that the defense of both quintets "bottled up" each other's offensive attack and this close guarding resulted in the low scoring.

That New N. L. Horsehide

By BURNLEY

Spring training exhibitions, if they should prove nothing else, should shed some light on the future effects of the new National League baseball. The older circuit's newly remodeled horsehide is supposed to be less lively than the old standard pill, still to be used by the American loop.

Frick's league could compete with the junior loop in slugging, so now they have decided to emphasize pitching and other defensive aspects of the game.

When a group of batters put the new sphere to the test a couple of months ago, the results were inconclusive, with conflicting reports. Some hitters reported a definite difference in the oval, while others said no obvious change could be detected in its liveliness.

On the other mitt, it seems that recent resiliency tests in the laboratory prove that there is no real difference in "bounce" between old and new balls.

The real points of importance that are expected to aid the moundsmen are the raised seams and the thicker cover. The seams will enable curve ball artists to impart a more pronounced hook to the agate, while the new cover will encounter more resistance from the wind and thus won't travel so far when nudged.

ANCIENT EGG CUPS

How early were egg cups used? Off-hand, the egg cup might seem a comparatively modern British fashion, but excavations conducted by the Princeton expedition in the ancient city of Antioch, Syria, proves that the egg cup dates back to the Early Christian and perhaps Medieval periods.

Findings of a unique series of mosaic floors were announced early this year by the expedition, supported by the Worcester, Fogg, Baltimore and Louvre Museums and Princeton University.

Through a trench dug, in an effort to clarify the relation of several mosaic rooms found during past seasons, the expedition uncovered a realistic representation of the courses which constituted a Roman banquet. One of the panels, thought to represent the ancient equivalent of a "buffet supper" scene, featured artichokes (probably served steamed with a butter sauce), pigs feet and eggs served in egg cups.

Interesting pottery, lamps and other household equipment, which show artistry and harmonious colorings, also are being classified by the expedition, which will continue the work this Spring and Summer.

Kamenev, have been executed; one, Tomsik, was driven to suicide; Trotsky is in exile; Rykov and Bukharin now face execution; Kirov was assassinated, and only Stalin remains.

It means that in the three previous public trials, 28 old Bolsheviks were executed, including eight leaders of the Army.

It means that, according to the latest official figures admitted in Moscow, 412 leading party members have been executed in the last three years. But actually the lowest estimate of informed sources in Moscow puts the total of executions of comparatively important persons during this period at a minimum of 700.

This does not count the tens of thousands of nameless victims executed or exiled to convict camps who perform the major labor of the five-year plans' greatest projects, such as canals, railways and hydro-electric plants.

These were comparatively unimportant politically, because the most important political opponents of Stalin were publicly condemned. The next most important were executed and their deaths announced. Lesser personages were merely executed without announcement.

Only one broad definition includes virtually all the victims—that is that they were, one way or another, against Stalin.

Most also were against what they considered the selfish bourgeois policy of ignoring international Communism for the sake of building socialism in the Soviet Union alone.

Some were active followers of Trotsky, although his name now is used in Moscow as a term of vituperation to be attached to every kind of political criminal.

The question most frequently asked about the present trial is: Why do they confess?

The answer is, first, because they probably are all guilty of the highest crime possible in the Soviet Union, namely, opposition to Stalin.

Once having been driven to confess that, it is easy by the methods of the NEVD to force them to confess to everything else in the indictment, including the most fantastic charges.

Each man is kept isolated and told that each of the others already has confessed all.

Each, being a genuine old Bolshevik, eventually is compelled, in the loneliness of a cell lighted 24 hours a day by a blinding incandescent lamp, to think perhaps he was wrong in opposing Stalin who, after all, was titular head of the Church of Communism.

Months, even years, of steady interrogation, sometimes continued without allowing the victim to sleep for many days, usually brings confession of most of the victim's real offenses.

After that, the simplest method to elicit all further details is to threaten the prisoner's relatives and friends, as an officially published law of the Soviet Union provides may be done.

Just Visiting, Not Awoooing

terial which people in the upper brackets had not before been known even to consider purchasing.

The number of wedding invitations has been drastically cut. Formerly they were issued often to persons remotely acquainted with the two families of the bride and groom. Today, just intimate friends are on the list. War time, you see.

Card printers report their production off 30 to 40 per cent. Many small print-shops are on the verge of bankruptcy. This may seem inconsequential, but Japan, probably more than any other Power, is famed for its love of name cards and invitations.

Engagements are being cancelled as young men are called to war. Too many girls want to get married through 1938, although the "year of the Tiger," according to the Zodiac calendar, is not an auspicious one for marriage.

On the other hand, numerous sudden marriages are reported by economic-minded families engineering marital negotiations to have young men marry their daughters that their respective families may be honored with having a soldier in the family; and in case of unhappy dispatches, substantial financial returns from the government. The Japanese are a very business-like people!

sary to provide either Federal or State supervisory government to properly control such navigable section of the waters of the Delaware River.

AND WHEREAS, the protection afforded such navigation through the supervision of a delegated authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as evidenced by the appointment of an official designated as Harbor Master under direction of the Navigation Commission, has been removed, thereby leaving unprotected and without proper direction, that section of a navigable stream utilized by both ocean-going steamships and other types of power propelled craft.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: That an earnest protest be presented to the Department of Forests and Waters against the Department's action in abolishing the office of Harbor Master and in leaving without correct supervision approximately twenty-eight miles of navigable waters which forms an important link in the present inland water transportation problem.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That the position of Harbor Master, together with the attendant responsibilities dependent upon that office, shall be restored without delay.
